The history of the University of Michigan-Flint began in 1944 when the Flint Board of Education requested that a University of Michigan Extension Office open in Flint. Key area citizens, already planning the cultural center, were interested in the idea of higher education in the community. Three years later, the Regents of the University funded a study exploring the possibilities for higher education in Flint. The community responded enthusiastically to the study, which called for the establishment of a four-year liberal arts college in Flint comparable to the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts on the Ann Arbor campus.

Since 1956, the University of Michigan-Flint has embraced the importance of "doing" as fundamental to each student's personal, professional, and academic growth. As part of the world-renowned University of Michigan system, we too are committed to the development of the next generation of "Leaders and Best."

At UM-Flint, the best leaders engage issues head-on, explore varying points of view, seek input from others, and become as familiar with realities as they do theories.

UM-Flint faculty from over 100 areas of study pour their expertise and creativity into the development of research and service-learning projects that match course curriculum with today's most-pressing issues. Such projects bring learning to life, address community needs, and fulfill students' desires to contribute to "something bigger than themselves."

Action-oriented academics is at the heart of the University of Michigan-Flint experience—and why our graduates are so highly sought by employers looking for leaders who know how to get things done.

The City of Flint

Tradition of Change
Fur. Lumber. Carriages. Cars. Colleges? Even before its incorporation as a city in 1855, Flint had forged a reputation as a place where innovative, world-changing ideas could be made real.

Billy Durant transformed the city's lumber boom into international success in the carriage industry. He then transformed his carriage achievements into the world's leading automobile manufacturer, General Motors.

The success of General Motors would be shared with workers after the Flint Sit-Down Strikes gave birth to the United Auto Workers union (UAW). The gains of Flint's autoworkers lifted wages and benefits for workers throughout the world, and are credited with building the American middle class.

Average working families were then able to send their children to college. Such was the case for the Page family. In his 2009 commencement speech in Ann Arbor, University of Michigan alumnus and Google co-founder and CEO Larry Page acknowledged... the role Flint and last century's dominant technology played in shaping his family's future:

"My father's father worked in the Chevy plant in Flint, Michigan. He was an assembly line worker. He drove his two children here to Ann Arbor, and told them, 'That is where you're going to go to college.' Both his kids did graduate from Michigan. That was the American dream."

Car Town to College Town
Today, Flint has more college students than the communities home to Princeton and Yale universities combined. Nearly 34,000 college students are currently enrolled at institutions of higher learning in Genesee County, the majority at the University of Michigan-Flint, Kettering University, Mott Community College, and Baker College.

With more and more of these students choosing to live on or near campus, local community and business leaders are responding by providing this growing population with the services and amenities college students want and expect. New restaurants, entertainment venues, retail shops, and loft apartments fill historic downtown buildings refurbished to meet these needs – while preserving the architecture, history, and uniqueness of downtown Flint.

Flint has always been a hub where creative and innovative people from all walks of life interact. Musicians and artists have long mingled with business people, community activists, and others. Today, that mix of perspectives and talents is paying off. Flint is quickly becoming known more as a true educational, cultural, artistic, and recreational hotbed than as "Vehicle City."

Those who embrace Flint's transformation as an opportunity to engage with and contribute to "real change" may find the experience to be the most meaningful education of all.

Getting Around
Still a key transportation hub, Flint is located at the intersection of two interstate highways, I-75 and I-69, making convenient travel to nearby cities like Detroit, Ann Arbor, and Lansing – all are less than 60 miles from Flint. The city has a local MTA bus system, an Amtrak train station, and Bishop International Airport – one of the fastest growing airports in the nation.

Signature Events
Metro Flint also boasts many signature annual events, including the Crim Festival of Races, the Flint Film Festival, the Back to the Bricks Classic Car Cruise, and a wide array of vibrant local art, music, and other cultural events. Explore what else Flint has to offer at www.exploreflint.org.

If you plan to purchase alternative insurance from your home country, please make sure your policy will meet the standards provided in Aetna Health Insurance before you purchase it as many policies do not meet these requirements. Also, please remember that the Aetna Health Insurance plan changes from time to time and so do the requirements for the approval of insurance waivers. Therefore, insurance that was acceptable in prior years may not be acceptable this year.

Please visit www.internationalcenter.umich.edu/healthins/waiver.html#standards for view coverage information. Other Important Information

Time Zones in the United States
The U.S. has four different time zones: Eastern, Central, Mountain, and Pacific. There is a one hour difference between the time zones. For instance, if it is 12 noon in New York, NY, then it is 11 a.m. in Chicago, IL, 10 a.m. in Denver, CO and 9 a.m. in Los Angeles. Flint, Michigan is in the Eastern Standard Time zone.

Weather and Clothing in Michigan
Michigan’s weather and climate changes with the four seasons: spring, summer, autumn/fall, and winter. In spring, the temperature is normally quite pleasant with many warm days; however the months of March and April can be quite cool and may snow occasionally. In June, July, and August the temperatures can be really hot, with temperature reaching 100°F (38°C) and it is also normal to have a high degree of humidity.

The fall begins slowly in October when the leaves are changing colors and the weather is cooling down a bit; however, there are still plenty of opportunities for some very pleasant and hot days at this time. The winter months are December through February, and can be quite cold and snowy, so thick and heavy clothes are recommended if outdoor activities are on your agenda.

Temperature Conversion
In the US, temperature is measured in Fahrenheit. To convert Fahrenheit to Celsius, please do the following:

- Subtract 32°F from the temperature
- Multiply by 5
- Divide by 9

So, 100°F would convert to \[(100 - 32) = 68\]

\[68 \times 5 = 340\]
\[340 \div 9 = 37.8°C\]
